This award acknowledges both the enduring contributions and consistent achievements throughout the recipient's professional career and may not

Justification: Dr. Davis makes history as the first female president of the Bahamas Technical and Vocational Institute. With a remarkable career spanning over two decades in higher education administration across the United States and the Caribbean, her journey encompasses key roles at esteemed institutions such as The College of The Bahamas, Wheelock College in Boston, MA, USA, and the University of The Bahamas (UB), where she served as Provost. Beginning her professional voyage as a faculty member in Humanities and Teacher Education, Dr. Davis smoothly transitioned into administrative positions, steadily advancing from Assistant Chair to Dean and subsequently assuming two VP-level roles before her tenure as Provost. Following a successful term at the University of The Bahamas, where she laid a solid groundwork, Dr. Davis ventured into new horizons in August 2019, seeking senior executive leadership opportunities. Currently, she holds the position of president at BTVI, alongside her roles as an independent consultant, mentor, and coach. Dr. Davis's rich background as an administrator, educator, and student has endowed her with a deep comprehension of academia's intricate dynamics. Rooted in her core
